2. [] visited with Mrs. Marion Miller in Senator Prescott Bush's office (R., Conn.) to discuss the inquiry they had received regarding Khrushchev's statements on the West Coast to the effect that the Soviets had obtained U. S. secret code books (see Journal of 7 October 1959). She was advised that the Agency had no further comment other than that made by the Director when he reserved comment but laughingly said "Mr. Khrushchev is quite a propagandist, isn't he?" She was advised, for her information and that of the Senator, of the Agency's policy of offering no comment to public utterances of this sort. She drafted a letter on the spot indicating that she had contacted the Agency which offered no further comment and contained a paragraph mentioning Senator Bush's friendship with the Director and his confidence in both him and his organization.

4. Mrs. Squires in the office of Congressman Joel T. Broyhill (R., Va.) called and requested the name and address of the firm now doing the bulldozing work on the new building. A call was subsequently made to Mr. Kraut in that office who indicated that the reason they wanted the information was to write to the company on behalf of a constituent who wanted a job at the Agency site. Mr. Kraut was given the name and address of the Thompkins-Jones Company.
